Commentary

Global equities edged out a small positive return in Q3 after a strong recovery in September erased a turbulent drop that took place in August. Emerging Markets posted the weakest returns while the U.S. fared among the best of the regional equity markets.

Growth stocks declined sharply, with several names down 5% to 15% from their August highs. The strongest-performing stocks during the period were generally those with the weakest fundamentals even though there appeared to be no change in their long-term business outlook. As a result, the Global Growth Strategy detracted from Pool performance.

Given investors' focus on companies with weaker fundamentals during the period, the Global Opportunistic Value Strategy and Core Strategy detracted from performance. Holdings in the Industrials, Information Technology, Financials and Materials sectors were a drag on returns.

The Equity Income Strategy, with its more defensive focus, contributed positively to returns for the Pool. The performance shift of global assets highlights the importance of investing with a long-term perspective in a disciplined multi-strategy approach.

The Morningstar quartile ranking reflects performance as of September 30, 2019 and is subject to change monthly. Morningstar is an independent organization that groups mutual funds with generally similar investment objectives for comparison purposes and ranks them on a historical basis. These rankings are broken into quarters or quartiles. Within a group, the top 25% (or quarter) of the funds are in the first quartile, the next 25% are in the second quartile, the next group in the third quartile, and the bottom 25% of funds with the poorest relative performance are in the fourth quartile.
